Dear Chief Ellerbe,

The decision to go back to college is never an easy one. There is never a good time and never enough money, but for public safety organizations, the need for skilled and educated leaders has never been a greater. If you value education as part of your development of current and future leaders in your organization, please encourage employees to consider our program. A tap on the shoulder and a word of encouragement from you can mean all the difference.

The Johns Hopkins Public Safety Leadership program no longer requires endorsements from employers and no longer restricts students to those holding supervisory rank. The program encourages participation from civilian staff as well as sworn officials. This more inclusive approach to cohort composition yields better learning outcomes and promotes richer discussion among students.

We are currently accepting applications for the Bachelor of Science in Management program which begins June 14, 2013, the Master of Science in Management program which begins September 6, 2013, and the Online MS in Management program which begins January 27, 2014.

During March, April and May, we will be hosting Information Sessions for students interested in our programs. Please assist us in sharing this opportunity with your employees through e-mail and posting of the enclosed flyers. For more information about our public safety programs, to RSVP for an information session, or to apply online visit www.psl.jhu.edu. If you are interested in hosting an information session at your agency, we would be happy to arrange this as well.

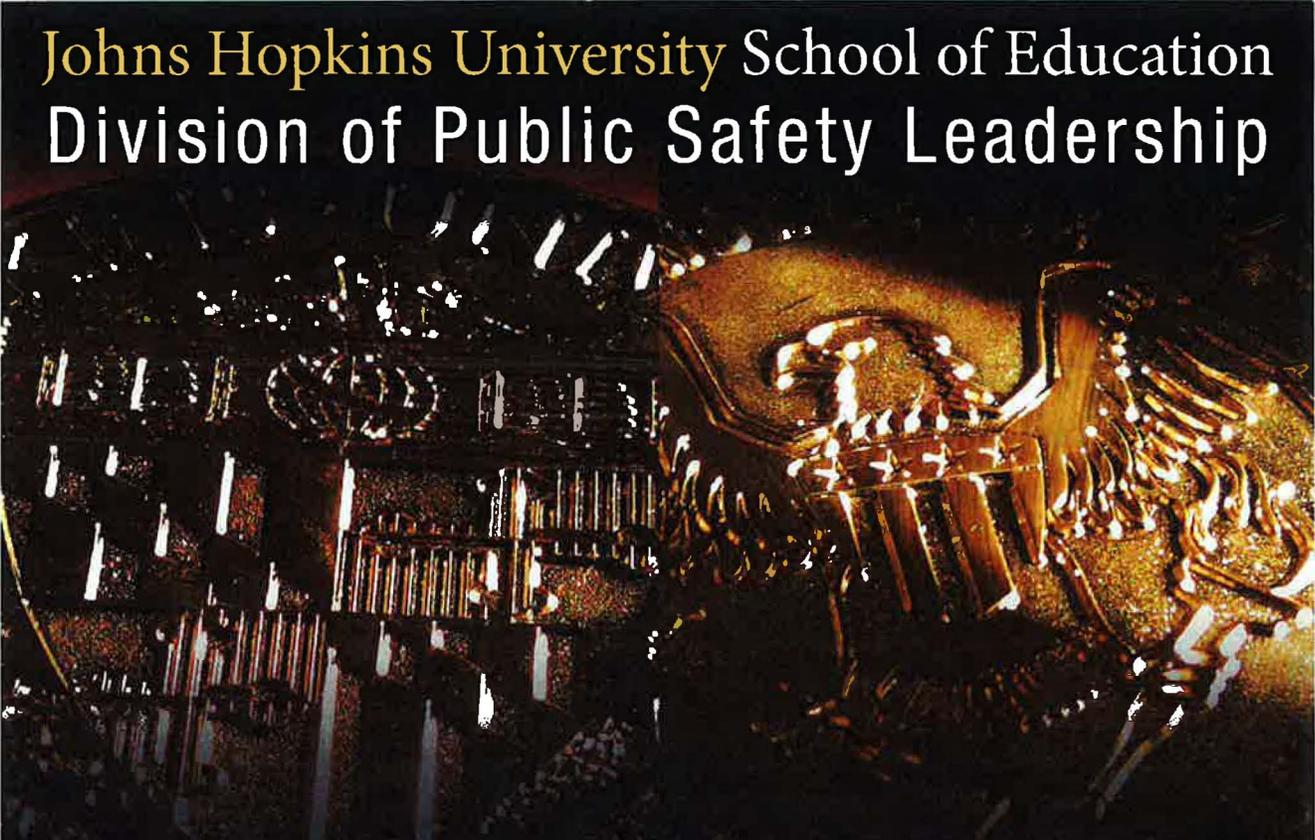

Thank you for your continued support, advice, and assistance. As always, any suggestions you have to improve the program or any issues you would like to have explored by students are always welcomed. If you would like additional information, please call me at 410-516-9860. I wish you the very best and look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

L. Douglas Ward
Director
